MELISSA DEL TORO SCHAFFNER, VOICE ACTOR

Melissa Del Toro Schaffner is an American Voice Actor, international best selling author, and highly sought after Accountability Coach. In addition to being in the Mom after 40 club, she wears multiple hats including Podcaster, Electrical Engineer, and Project Manager. She is a strong-minded, interesting woman of many talents and accomplishments. She is both the creator and illustrator of the Minority Girl Empowerment Coloring Book "Careers for Little Sisters" and was a contestant on the nationally televised game show "Who Wants to Be a Millionaire". An engaging storyteller, your listeners will be thrilled to hear her life-affirming story, and how she manages such a busy and accomplished life!

Blazing through her bucket list, her "one woman on a mission" adventures include Dogsledding in Nome, Alaska, trekking the pyramids of Mexico, and a particularly magical Christmas tour of the Kremlin. But while these adventures were amazing, it was her powerful memory of watching the 1998 cartoon A Bug's Life which radically changed her course, leading to a Jerry McGuire-style moment - quitting her lucrative 20-year corporate career to become a full-time Voice actor. Now the mom of a preschooler, she uses her many experiences as a mother and corporate professional to perform warm and caring voiceover scripts.

Her current endeavor is as the narrator of The Untold Tales Podcast - a high quality, short story sci-fi audio drama. This is just one more outlet to further her mission to inspire one million women to summon up the courage to live the life of their dreams. Your listeners will love how she has become the example she was always seeking in the world but never found...
